

Black Hammer

“...tunes so sharp they could have been played by a pool shark and curves Christina Ricci would envy... Country and Kurt Weil, mazurka and bluegrass, Celtic ballad and marching band music all at once.”

CARL WILSON IN THE GLOBE AND MAIL

are gracing the stage with a new show directed by James Fagan Tait, that puts Millard's new song cycle in a theatrical setting: A setting that takes you on a journey into a territory that is as dream-like as it is familiar, as comforting as it is haunting. You are invited to go with them on a voyage to a place that insists on a state of remembrance, a place that shakes the ordinary into the realm of mystery.

Beautiful, funny and always poetic, this is a showcase for four of Toronto's most sublime musical talents: John Millard, Rob Clutton, Randi Helmers and Karin Randoja.
